SPECIAL COURSE OFFERING

THAILAND AND ITALY

INTERNATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL LAW.

This will be offered as an intensive three week course in both Bangkok and Bologna. It deals with international protection of the environment. Since national efforts alone will not suffice to control the continuing injury to the environment, only international global controls provide the hope for a safe and sane environment. Attention is directed to global endeavors by the United Nations and other international institutions such as the World Bank. The course will cover multilateral conventions related to various aspects of the environment, e.g. the Geneva Convention on Long Range Transboundary Air Pollution, the Montreal Protocol on the Ozone Layer, the Conventions on Prevention of Dumping of Nuclear and other Toxic Wastes in the Ocean, and the follow-up efforts to the 1992 Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro. Professor Stephen McCaffrey (Thailand); Professor Armin Rosencranz (Italy)

COURSES

INTERNATIONAL SALE CONTRACTS are now spreading all over the world. The United Nations Commission on International Trade Law has elaborated a Convention (the Vienna Sales Convention) which entered into force in 1988 and covers most international export sales of goods. This course covers the scope of the uniform law on issues such as formation of contracts, rights and obligations of both the buyer and seller, breach of contract rules, as well as other issues governed by the convention. Professor Ferrari.

LAW OF THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY becomes increasingly important not only in Europe, but in other countries as well, since it constitutes a model for possible cooperation among different legal systems. That is why it is important to understand the functioning of the EEC Law. The course focuses on the EEC institutions and both its law-making and decision-making process, as well as on the EEC's social policy and harmonization of national law and the EEC's external relations. Professor Selden.

INTERNATIONAL ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION is a course focusing on transnational commercial disputes arising throughout the European Continent. Within this course the different dispute resolution alternatives will be compared, such as the non-binding processes based upon negotiation and the binding processes based upon adjudication. Furthermore, the course will examine the substantive and procedural "law" pertaining to transnational commercial arbitration, such as the UNCITRAL Model Law, the London Court of International Arbitration Rules, as well as the ICC Arbitration Rules. Professor Orlandi and Professor Coombe.

INTERNATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL LAW:
See special course offering.

TRANSNATIONAL CIVIL LITIGATION is growing in importance since the occasions of disputes involving citizens from different nations are growing. Therefore it is necessary to know the basic principles relating to foreign procedural law, such as the rules relating to the effects of a judgment and enforcement proceedings, the rules governing the burden of proof, etc. The course will also focus on problems American lawyers have to face when dealing with foreign tribunals or with the proof of foreign law in American courts. Professor Borghesi and Professor Marsh.

COMPARATIVE CRIMINAL PROCEDURE is a course which aims to acquaint students with criminal procedure systems other than the U.S. system in order to gain new insights and perspectives. In order to achieve this goal, different fundamental issues will be discussed, including search practices and interrogation, the role of the prosecutor and of the defense counsel, as well as the role of the jury and lay judges. Furthermore the plea bargaining system will be discussed, since it has been recently introduced in some European systems. Professor Moskovitz
